Telepsychology Consent Form

Telepsychology is the delivery of psychological services using interactive audio or audiovisual electronic systems where the therapist and the client are not in the same physical location. The interactive electronic systems used in telepsychology incorporate network and software security protocols to protect the confidentiality of patient information and audio and visual data. These contracts include measures to safeguard the data and to aid in protecting against intentional or unintentional corruption. However, these electronic systems may not comply with HIPAA, the federal medical privacy law. I use VSEE communications for this service, and it is encrypted end to end.

Potential benefits include increased accessibility to psychological care and convenience. However there are also potential disadvantages, including that security protocols can fail, causing a breach of privacy of my private health information. Traditional face to face meetings are the best alternative to the use of telepsychology, and you have right to choose the means of services you would prefer.

I understand that the laws that protect the privacy and confidentiality of private health information also apply to telepsychology. I understand that the VSEE technology used by Lynda Phillips is encrypted to prevent the unauthorized access to my personal health information. I have the right to withhold or withdraw my consent to the use of telepsychology during my care at any time. I understand that, in this event, Lynda Phillips will work with me to find an alternative form of care.

I understand that all rules and regulations which apply to the practice of clinical mental health therapy in the state of New York also apply to telepsychology.
